I love archery, video games, sports, and swimming. Cancer has affected my family by helping us understand who our friends and family are and that sometimes life hands you something difficult but with prayer and support you can make it through anything. It has helped us value each other more and hold each other tighter daily as we fight to make it through together.

Believe in yourself and your dreams and fight for them every day.

Think about all the smiling faces you have helped while you run or walk!
